1	Hace cientos de años que en hermoso día apareció en el valle de Mexico un hombre blanco con cabello y barba negra, de facciones finas y delicadas.	Hundreds of years ago, on a beautiful day, a white man appeared in the Valley of Mexico with black hair and beard, with fine and delicate features.	Hundreds of years ago, on a beautiful day, a white-skinned man with black hair and beard and delicate features appeared in the Valley of Mexico.	White-robed Quetzalcoatl is a mythic figure symbolizing morality and order, appearing as a priestly teacher.	'White man' shifted to 'white-skinned man' to avoid colonial misreading and align with mythic image.
2	Vestía traje de sacerdote que consistía de una túnica blanca adornada con cruces negras y rojas.	He wore priestly garments consisting of a white tunic adorned with black and red crosses.	He wore a white priest's robe decorated with black and red crosses.	His robe's crosses likely reflect ritual or cosmic symbolism in Mesoamerican beliefs.	Simplified syntax to make 'robe decorated with crosses' sound natural.
3	Pronto se reunió a él un gran número de gente que crecía según el día avanzaba.	Soon a great number of people gathered around him as the day advanced.	Soon many people gathered to him as each day passed.	His followers grew as his peaceful teachings spread.	'As the day advanced' adapted to 'as each day passed' for readability.
4	Era Quetzalcoatl, a quién le dieron el nombre de 'Dios Blanco'.	It was Quetzalcoatl, to whom they gave the name 'White God'.	This was Quetzalcoatl, whom they called the 'White God'.	The 'White God' title reflects how local mythology mythologized Quetzalcoatl's divine status.	'Dios Blanco' translated as 'White God' to retain mythological term.
5	Durante su permanencia allí hizo construir casas de oración y penitencia adornadas con esmeraldas y plumas preciosas.	During his stay, he built prayer and penitence houses adorned with emeralds and precious feathers.	While there, he built great prayer halls adorned with emeralds and fine feathers.	Temple-building and use of precious stones suggest Quetzalcoatl's association with wisdom and refinement.	'Prayer and penitence houses' rendered more smoothly as 'great prayer halls'.
6	Después se confundió con el planeta Venus y se convirtió en el dios del viento.	Later he was confused with the planet Venus and became the god of the wind.	Eventually he became associated with the planet Venus and was worshipped as the god of the wind.	Linking Quetzalcoatl with Venus fits Mesoamerican cosmology where Venus was tied to cycles and deities.	'Confused with Venus' adapted as 'associated with Venus' for clarity.
